Q.1: How do you think companies could do a good job of explaining to you what they do with your personal data?

they could show popups in the app or website when they were going to do something with my data.

they could give a little class\self video when you open their first page.

they could make the words on their pages have brackets that tell you what they mean (all pages not just the privacy policy and for colour blind people writing in white\black so they can see and read too.write the words like you are explaining to a 1 -3 year old)

Q.2: What age do you think you should have to be before you can sign up for a social media account without your parents' permission? Why do you think that?

16-18 because younger people could make silly mistakes and currently that is the law so parents/guardians can explain what is going to happen with their data and reasons like that.

Q.3: What age do you think you should have to be before you can ask any company for a copy of your personal data, or before you can tell them to delete your personal data?

you need to be able to talk PROPERLY not just goo goo gaga like babies so people can understand you.

different kids have different levels of ability like someone could not understand something but someone else could.

It would be more helpful to set an age up to which parents could help kids to get their data or delete data.

Q.4: Do you think you should be in charge of your own personal data? Or should your parents have a say in what you do with it? Why do you think this?

parents should be able to help up to a certain age you should be in charge but up until 16 you should have help from a parent/guardian.

because you have the right to be in charge but at the same time you might need help from a parent/guardian because you could make a mistake and/or you might need help understanding.

Q.5: Do you think companies should be allowed to use your personal data to show you ads? Why do you think this?

NO

because think of the difference between tv ads and this type of ad as these ads are literally so scary because they are pointed at me and not at everyone like a TV ad.

Also, companies don't need to know lots about kids.
